OTHER FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

Scholarships

The GEM Scholarship waives non-resident tuition for out-of-state and international graduate students with an overall GPA of at least 3.00 who are accepted into the M.A. in Communication program. The GEM scholarship amounts to a $28,900 scholarship over two years.

For more information on the GEM Scholarship see the Graduate College’s GEM Scholarship information.

For more information on the cost of graduate studies and possible funding options including fellowships and the graduate resident scholars program see the Graduate College’s Funding Graduate School information.

Financial Aid Options

Other forms of financial aid, such as loans or the College Work Study Program, are available to graduate students. Prospective students should contact the Financial Aid Office and consult the Boise State University catalog.
